Rhodes to use petitions for issues

General Assembly fails to act on 4 proposals

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes, saying he has no choice, said today he will mount an initiative petition drive to get his four-point "depression-proof" package on the November election ballot.

In a morning news conference, the governor said he will try to gather more than twice the required 300,000 signatures by August to put the issues to a vote in their original form.

Rhodes said he also will propose two new programs, one on energy and one which he refused to discuss. He did not give details on his energy program.

The governor's announcement came after the General Assembly failed to act on his proposals by a midnight deadline for the June 3 primary Wednesday night.

Rhodes said delay until November will cause hardship to Ohio workers. He said approval by the voters in November "is too late. But I don't think there's any other choice."

While declining to blame individual legislators for the failure of the heavily-amended resolutions in the General Assembly, Rhodes said that "the legislature did not do the job."

"We're for the program. We're going to the people," Rhodes said. "Our polls show the people of Ohio want action now. We're going to take our fight to the people."

The resolutions still could be put on the November ballot through action by the General Assembly, but the Republican governor said further action by the General Assembly does not concern him.

He said amendments and changes by the legislature have made the proposals unworkable.

Natural gas curtailments to continue

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Natural gas curtailments by Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., will continue through the summer at reduced levels, the firm announced Wednesday.

The firm's 1,380 industrial customers now under a 40 per cent curtailment will receive only 10 per cent more from April 1 through Oct. 31.

The 1,561 commercial users cut back to 60 per cent of their normal allocations will receive 85 per cent during the period.

Columbia was uncertain about allocations in November.

At one point during the winter, Columbia Gas curtailed allocations 55 per cent to some industrial customers. That curtailment was reduced Feb. 15 after warm winter weather created a small surplus.

Marvin E. White of Columbus, president of Columbia Gas of Ohio, said the curtailment was necessary because of a continuing projected supply deficiency by Columbia Gas of Ohio's wholesale supplier, Columbia Gas Transmission Corp.

White said that the reduction by the transmission firm is caused by continued curtailment of natural gas production by its Southwest suppliers, as well as the necessity for the transmission company to refill underground storage reservoirs during the summer to handle winter needs.

Countdown faulty?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State lawmakers who chanted a second-by-second countdown Wednesday night as the midnight deadline for action on Gov. James A. Rhodes' four ill-fated June 3rd ballot proposals neared, may have quit an hour before they had to.

House Minority Leader Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perryburg, raised the question, noting that Ohio's lawbooks define the official time for the state as standard, although it and most other states observe Daylight Saving Time under a federal law.

Kurfess said Democratic leaders should have checked it out "before announcing on the floor of the Senate that midnight was here and the deadline had passed."

Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, said "we were told that we had to operate under the time we were on" and that he understood Senate Minority Leader Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, had checked with Secretary of State Ted W. Brown.

Sen. Marigene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo, an attorney, called it "an interesting question," then noted "it's a moot question now."

The four proposals will go on the petition at least in their original form, and "in all probability they'll be much stronger," he said.

The four proposals include:
—A $2.5 billion capital improvements bond issue for cities and towns.
—A $1.6 billion bond issue for transportation projects.

—A proposal allowing the state to make low-interest housing loans to individuals.
—A proposal granting massive tax abatements to industries locating or expanding in Ohio, particularly in the inner cities.

Rhodes said he believes he can get the required 300,000 signatures within 10 days after the beginning of a petition drive.

"When warm weather comes, we're going to have gatherings of unemployed people on corners," he said. Rhodes said he personally will stump for the issues.

The proposals, first announced by Rhodes only a little over three weeks ago, required approval by both houses. But the clock ran out on the General Assembly Wednesday night.

The governor praised House leaders for their work on the proposals. He pointedly did not commend the Senate, but refused to directly criticize either the upper chamber or its leaders.

Legislators milled about the floors of the Senate and House while the minutes ticked away in anticipation of salvaging at least one of the Republican governor's four proposed constitutional amendments.

As the Senate waited for concurrence from the lower chamber on Rhodes' housing plan, time ran out, and President Pro Tem Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, moved for adjournment.

"The hour has arrived and the deadline has come," he said.

The governor needed a three-fifths majority in both houses to meet a 90-day deadline to qualify the amendments for the June 3 primary ballot.

All four of the ambitious jobs and building ballot proposals were given some chance of passage when the General Assembly began work at midday.

A plan to grant tax abatements to manufacturers to attract industry to Ohio was the first to be struck down. The measure was killed 17-15 in a Senate floor vote.

But it was not until the Senate Finance Committee began evening deliberations on a $2.5 billion urban capital improvements bond issue that newsmen and legislators sensed that the entire package might be doomed.

A deal between Rhodes and AFL-CIO labor leaders to soften a seven-tenths cent increase in the state's four-cent sales tax apparently fell through and Democrats moved to fund the bonds with an increased income tax.

Less than two hours before midnight, the committee recommended approval of the revised bond plan. But by then leaders of the two houses found they could not accept each other's versions of a proposed housing plan and a $1.35 billion transportation bond issue.

"I'm satisfied that this was an obvious strategy of delay," said Senate Minority Leader Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati.

Ocasek, who steadfastly opposed the industrial tax break bill, and was against the urban bond plan because of the sales tax increase, offered no apologies.

"There was very limited time," he said. "These are massive proposals."

Rhodes had contended that his sweeping proposals would create 100,000 jobs in the state within a year, attract massive federal matching funds and make Ohio "depression-proof."

He described his $2.5 billion urban bond issue as a near cure-all that would "make Ohio the finest state in the Union." Critics called it the "Christmas tree bill."

Ocasek called Senate Democrats into caucus after the urban bond bill was voted out and there they remained until 11:40 p.m. when they returned to the floor to wait for House concurrence on the housing amendment that never came.

Earlier, Ocasek delayed appointing Senate conferees to hammer out differences in the transportation and housing amendments with legislators from the House.

Rep. Edward J. Orlett, D-34 Dayton, who sponsored the $1.35 billion Democratic alternative to Rhodes' transportation proposals, stormed out of Ocasek's office shortly after 10 p.m.

"There won't be any transportation plan," he said. "It's dead. That's it, forget it."

Democrats had lowered the overall

Preliminary plans approved for new apartment complex

The Washington C.H. City Planning Commission Wednesday night approved preliminary plans for five eight-family dwellings which comprise the first phase of a construction project submitted by Jemo Associates, Inc., Galena.

The 40-unit apartment complex will be located off Glenn Avenue in the Storybrook Addition. Ultimately plans call for 72 units housed in nine buildings. They would be situated on five acres.

Funded by the Farmers Home Administration, the buildings would be two-story dwellings. Each would provide space for eight two-bedroom apartments, each built according to FHA specifications.

City Manager Dan Wolford noted that since the units are to be constructed according to FHA plans, tenants in the lower income brackets would be eligible for FHA rent subsidies. Jerry Wolford recommended approval of the preliminary plans to the city planning commission because he felt the plans met requirements in all of the major areas of commission concern. He said the proposal complied with the city's master zoning plan, presented no great threat of adverse effect upon the Washington C.H. community, presented no excessive traffic problems, and appears to have an integrated design.

Democrats defend failure of issues

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Majority Democrats early today defended as "fiscal responsibility" the legislature's inability to take action before a midnight deadline to place Gov. James A. Rhodes' four-part economic package on Ohio's June 3 primary ballot.

At the same time, a minority Republican accused Democratic leaders of "purposeful dilatory tactics or just plain ineptness, or both."

House Minority Leader Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perryburg, added: "It doesn't make any difference. Neither is a credit to the legislative process."

Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, said he feels the people of Ohio won "a victory" because the leadership refused to place on the ballot "something we were not sure was fiscally sound."

The proposals were not adequately funded, he said, "but are very much alive" and will continue under consideration for a possible place on the November ballot.

Rhodes, whose legislative aides were on hand for most of the marathon session, sent word by them that he would have a statement later today. He was in his office throughout the deliberations and was described as being "not happy" with the turn of events.

Scrapped by the legislature, at least for the time being, were transportation and capital improvements bond issues, and proposals that would have had the state issue revenue bonds for housing and would have given major tax breaks to new or expanding industry.

Ocasek said consideration of the package "in 11 legislative days was a massive undertaking. We plodded along and did the best job we could. We're going to put something together for the future, something with fiscal responsibility."

Kurfess asserted the Democratic leadership, to the contrary, didn't try to move along. The House didn't move with dispatch even last week. We shouldn't have left everything for this week.

House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, said "there was no stumbling block in the House," adding that the two chambers "couldn't get an agreement" on the housing and transportation proposals. Both measures had gone to conference committees.

Riffe said leaders were considering "some alternatives", among them the possibility of changing the primary election date to let the issues go on a later ballot. He said Rhodes indicated unless he didn't get 'his' proposals "he'd prefer not to have any."

Rhodes said earlier he didn't want the issues to wait until November.

Ford pushes summer jobs program

WASHINGTON (AP) — An additional 760,000 youths could get summer jobs and up to 310,000 adults could get six month's more work if Congress approves President Ford's latest proposal to spur employment.

Ford asked Congress Wednesday for $2 billion to fund the summer job program for youths and extend the public-service job program for adults beyond its scheduled Dec. 31 expiration.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford acted after the Labor Department advised him it would have to begin phasing out public service jobs on July 1 in order to terminate the program by the end of the year.

Meanwhile, the administration hoped that the February figures for the wholesale price index, to be released today, would show the third straight month of decline.

Ford's request for more job money matches a proposal already being shaped by the House Appropriations Committee.

The committee is expected to approve a $5.9 billion special appropriation bill Friday containing $1.625 billion for public service jobs under state and local governments and $412.7 million for summer jobs for youths.

House Speaker Carl Albert and Appropriations Chairman George Mahon, D-Tex., said they will push the bill through the House this month.

The additional spending on public service jobs would further boost the federal budget deficit, already estimated at about $52 billion for the upcoming fiscal year. However, the deficit jump would be somewhat less than the spending increase because workers getting the new jobs would be paying a portion of the money back to the government in taxes.

Nessen said the public service job program is designed to provide employment for 310,000 workers, but he said "the states and cities have been a bit slow in filling all these slots." Only about 170,000 of the public service jobs have been filled by state and local governments, according to the Office of Management and Budget.

Money to provide more summer work for youths, a group especially hard-hit by the recession, had been urgently requested by big city mayors fearful of an increase in crime among the young when school sessions end this summer.

A cross section of mayors said they were pleased with Ford's reaction in requesting money, but they said his proposal doesn't go far enough.

"Ford's figure is too little and will cause problems when we line up people for jobs," said Mayor Kenneth A. Gibson of Newark, N.J., a Democrat. "There won't be enough jobs to go around."

San Juan Mayor Carlos Romero, president of the National League of Cities, said the organization would continue to press Congress for $650 million to create 1.1 million summer youth jobs.

The seriousness of the employment crunch was reflected by a Labor Department report which said more than six million persons received unemployment benefit checks in the week end Feb. 15.

The claims represented a record high level for the second consecutive week and the Feb. 15 figure was 125,600 higher than the previous week.

However, the Labor Department said initial claims for unemployment benefits in the week ending Feb. 22 totaled 605,200, a decrease of 43,700 from the previous week.

On another economic front, the Commerce Department reported that manufacturers increased their inventories of goods and raw materials by seven-tenths of one per cent, or $1.1 billion, during January. That brought the total of manufactured goods and raw materials in warehouses to $151.1 billion, but it was the smallest monthly increase since April, 1973.

'Greenbelt' amendment on ballot

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The General Assembly has approved for the June 3 primary ballot a "greenbelt" amendment to grant tax breaks to open space used for recreation.

A proposed constitutional amendment to ease the mandatory rotation of candidates names on the ballot missed the midnight Wednesday deadline for the June election when a Senate committee decided against giving it immediate consideration.

Both amendments were separate issues, unrelated to Gov. James A. Rhodes' four-part ballot package.

The recreation amendment would permit open space used for recreation to be assessed according to its current use rather than its market value, as now required. The legislature would authorize the lower rates and determine which areas qualified.

The measure passed the House 71-25 without debate in marked contrast to the heated exchanges preceding its approval in the Senate Tuesday.

Senate opponents labeled it a "country club" or "golf couse" bill and nearly succeeded in passing an amendment to guarantee that areas getting the tax break were "open to the public whether or not a fee is charged."

Sen. Donald L. Woodland, the sponsor, said "there was no mention in this legislation to exclude anyone from using recreation areas in the state of Ohio."

He said the tax break would help hunting, fishing, swimming and tennis clubs as well as golf courses.

The bill contains an anti-discrimination clause that would prohibit owners of designated areas from violating the civil rights of patrons.

Sen. Tony P. Hall, D-Dayton, Financial Institutions and Insurance Committee, said it would have been "almost impossible" to hear the ballot-rotation bill before the deadline because of the crush of legislation.

Secretary of State Ted W. Brown, a Republican, who is the state's chief election officer, said Hall's delay would result in "voter confusion as well as considerable additional expense to the taxpayers of counties using automatic voting equipment."

"We favor the principle of ballot rotation to assure that each candidate's name appears an equal number of times at the top of each ballot, but the present constitutional provision is too complicated," Brown said. "The resolution provides for the legislature to prescribe rotation guidelines which would be both workable and equitable."

Hall said he had not been informed of the resolution until it passed the House Tuesday.

"He (Brown) would like to see the bill sail through my committee in a matter of hours, which is almost impossible because of other bond issues before us," Hall said.

The measure will be considered for the November ballot, he said.

Private pension plans seen folding

WASHINGTON (AP) — Private pension plans are folding at a slightly higher rate than in the past, with the slumping economy apparently a greater factor than the strict new federal pension law.

In the first six months since the new law took effect last Sept. 2, a total of 879 plans have ended operation, according to their notifications to the new Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp.

That's an annual rate about one-sixth higher than the number of plan terminations in 1972 when the labor and treasury departments studied previous plan shutdowns.

That study of what happens to workers' benefits when their pension plans fold was one element leading to passage of the pension revision law last year.

The law established the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp. to insure worker benefits and set stricter standards in a number of areas.

For example, the new law requires that an employee receive rights to some or all of available pension benefits after fewer years of service than had previously been the case.

The person who acts as the fiduciary or manager of a pension plan must meet stricter standards for managing the plan. The law also requires employers to set aside funds for future pension payments as soon as the employees earn pension credits. It also mandates extensive reporting to the Labor Department.

There are about 350,000 private pension plans in the United States.

Before the law was enacted, there was some speculation that the tougher standards would lead some pension plans, particularly those of small employers, to shut down rather than improve operations.

A random selection of termination notices filed with the pension guaranty corporation, however, mostly put the blame on economic conditions.

For example:

—A Connecticut mechanical contractor cited "adverse business conditions" for the demise of a 5-year-old pension plan.

—A New York clothier's notice said the plan sponsor is in the hands of creditors.

—A Georgia auto dealer cited economic conditions and possible corporate bankruptcy.

—A small Los Angeles firm said it is operating at a loss.

—An Indiana clothing firm said fund assets were principally in declining stocks and bonds. "As these values decrease, the ability of the plan to pay benefits will also decrease," the notice said.

Other reasons such as sale of a business, death of an owner, merging of one plan into another and inside fighting also were given.

Only occasionally was the new law mentioned.

A New Jersey firm simply cited "economic conditions and complexity of the new law." A company official declined to elaborate in an interview.

A Washington, D.C., lighting company said it was ending its plan covering nine workers because "it is not feasible for us to comply with all the regulations."

An official of the firm, who asked that his name not be used, said he opposed having to include young, short-term employees in the pension plan.

Phnom Penh airport said not in imminent danger

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Phnom Penh airport, key to survival of the Cambodian capital, is not in imminent danger of being closed by Communist force or falling to rebel forces, defense analysts say.

With the Mekong River convoy route cut, all ammunition and fuel for Cambodian forces and rice for Phnom Penh is being flown in by U.S.-hired airline contractors.

The airlift was interrupted Wednesday after Communist shrapnel damaged a chartered World Airways DC8 jet transport on the ground at Phnom Penh. Flights resumed today after the runway was checked for safety.

Meanwhile, the 18,000-ton helicopter carrier Okinawa remained at sea about 200 miles from Cambodia in case it is called on to evacuate some 400 Americans from Phnom Penh. Hundreds of Marines aboard the Okinawa would be used to assist the evacuation, if necessary.

Sources indicated a likelihood that the U.S. government would try to bring out U.S. civilians and perhaps citizens of some other countries by fixed-wing aircraft if possible. Helicopter evacuation probably would take longer, they said.

Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger said Wednesday that "we would be prepared ... to use the Marines to extricate Americans if the need arises."

Other defense sources said the U.S. embassy in Phnom Penh has not yet asked for any evacuation move. They also said no landing orders have gone to the carrier Okinawa.

There was a general reluctance among defense officials to discuss possible evacuation of Americans. They are concerned that talk in U.S. official quarters about evacuation might deal a psychological blow to the fragile morale of the Cambodian government and its army and perhaps contribute to their collapse.

President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told a congressional delegation Wednesday that the Cambodians "are running out of time." Appealing for quick approval of an emergency $222 million in aid, Ford and Kissinger said "the United States should not pull the plug on Cambodia by denying it aid to defend itself." The House Foreign Affairs Committee is scheduled to take up the request next week.

Stock list up slightly

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market reversed a weak opening today, turning narrowly higher on the strength of favorable inflation news from the government.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was ahead 0.86 at 753.68, recovering from a slide of more than four points in the opening hour. Advances took the lead over declines by a narrow margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Bud Simons of Weeden & Co., commenting on the Big Board's weakness in the early going, said, "We are in a short and probably low-volume consolidation that began two days ago." The market overcame profit takers, however, helped by news from the government that wholesale prices dropped 0.8 per cent in February, the third monthly decline in a row.

Ryder System, the most active Big Board issue, fell ¼ to 4½, including a 203,300-share block at 4½.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index rose 0.01 at 76.90.

The NYSE's composite stock index was unchanged at 43.78.

Kissinger optimistic

LONDON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, in Britain today on the way to his latest Middle East peace mission, is guardedly optimistic that he will be able to arrange terms for a broad Israeli withdrawal in the Sinai desert.

But U.S. officials in Kissinger's party stressed that neither Israel nor Egypt has given him a formal position.

Kissinger stopped in Britain to attend ceremonies today honoring British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan in Cardiff, Wales. He also planned to meet Greek Foreign Minister Dimitrios Bitsios in Brussels on Friday seeking a way to reopen negotiations between the Greek and Turkish Cypriots. Then he flies to Egypt.

Kissinger's mission was clouded at the outset by the bloody Palestinian guerrilla raid in Tel Aviv. The secretary of state and his aides had no immediate comment on how the raid might affect his mission. But other officials pointed out that a similar terrorist raid on an Israeli school last May had no noticeable effect on Kissinger's negotiations at the time for an Israeli-Syrian disengagement agreement.

Kissinger reportedly starts his ninth negotiating trip to the Middle East with "general ideas" for an interim settlement between Israel and Egypt. He is said to be confident that his exploratory visit two weeks ago produced considerable progress toward a settlement.

His first objective now, newsmen were told, is to get from Egyptian President Anwar Sadat a concrete outline to present to the Israeli cabinet.

Set fee hike at Antioch

YELLOW SPRINGS, Ohio (AP) — Antioch College Chancellor Francis X. Shea has proposed a $350 tuition hike that would make 1975-76 tuition at the college $3,300.

"And if inflation goes up," said Shea, "tuition will probably continue to go up."

Shea said he expected the school's administrative council to approve his request.

He said the additional cost would barely cover a $300 cut in tuition and fees that went into effect for 1974-75 in efforts to attract more students to the Yellow Springs campus.

The new chancellor said he is concerned about bringing more money into the school, which has been beset by student strikes and financial problems while establishing some 25 new campuses and study centers in the U.S. and abroad.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — If you are to believe the ads, "Love Among the Ruins," a two-hour romantic comedy on ABC tonight, is one of the season's major tube happenings.

It co-stars two major talents, Katherine Hepburn and Laurence Olivier, was written by Emmy award-winner James Costigan and is the first TV drama guided by veteran Hollywood director George Cukor.

It has a lively premise. A wealthy old retired actress, sued by a young former suitor for breach of promise, hires a distinguished lawyer she'd had a fling with 50 years earlier and then forgotten.

And there is much to be said for Olivier's portrayal of the barrister and Miss Hepburn's depiction of the aged actress. He handles his role with relish, while she provides the ham.

Alas, neither quite overcomes Costigan's tendency to write baggy drama in which scenes go on interminably amid cries of, "The next nuance leaves in two minutes."

Fee hike eyed at Ohio State

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Students in residence halls and eating in dining rooms at Ohio State University may have to pay $30 a quarter more next fall if trustees approve a proposed 6.55 per cent fee hike at a meeting Friday.

Richard H. Armitage, vice president for student services, said the proposal was necessary to offset projected operating cost increases of 11.5 per cent.

OSU increased residence and dining hall fees by $13 a quarter last fall.

About 9,000 students would be affected.

The result is a static comedy of manners, set in the year 1911 in the city of London. Things commence with Olivier dashing from court to office to greet his new client with lawyerly har-rumphs.

There is opening small talk. "May I offer you some sherry?" asks he. "You may, but I shan't drink it," says she. It soon is established that the elderly tort-monger has a severe crush on the lady.

We also learn that this highspirited, aristocratic damsel gave up her acting career while young to marry a wealthy, middle aged businessman who died 40 years after saying, "I do."

Her young suitor, an impoverished ship's purser, claims in his 50,000 pound suit she promised to marry him and then reneged.

"Do I look like the sort of woman who seduces and destroys young boys as the newspapers imply?" she asks learned counsel as he sighs and sighs at memories of his own youthful days with her.

He finally tells her they met in Toronto years ago. He was a starving law student, she was an actress in a repertory company. They had three beautiful days together, then she moved on and married.

She doesn't remember, of course. Or does she?

The love-struck lawyer devises a unique strategy — destroy his client's reputation to save her — but its execution doesn't save the show.

It's a pity, because Olivier turns in a superbly-acted closing court argument and Miss Hepburn is equally brilliant in a mock (as it turns out) rage which prompts the judge to give her the old heave-ho.

Hepburn and Olivier fanciers no doubt will rave about "Love Among the Ruins." But they'd rave even if the stars did a Yellow Pages reading, which probably would be far livelier than tonight's script.

Miss Robinson with digitor

'Dear teacher, dear class'

By LEWIS PARRETT
Elementary Coordinator

This week we are introducing Miss Patricia Robinson and her class of 24 fourth grade boys and girls at Eastside Elementary School to our reading public.

Miss Robinson is another of our native children who not only grew up in our midst but who have brought their rich talents back to us by choosing a meaningful teaching career right here at home. She lives at 532 Highland Avenue with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William K. Robinson. Her father, too, once taught in the Washington C.H. city schools. Quite prominent in her life are two brothers, their wives, and her two nieces and two nephews.

After graduating from Washington High School, Miss Robinson enrolled at Ohio State University where she prepared for a teaching career and received her bachelor of science degree in elementary education. She returned home after graduation as a fourth grade teacher at the then nearly new Eastside Elementary School. Today, some 13 years later, she continues to bring energy and motivation to her classes.

Outside the classroom, Miss Robinson is a quite active young lady. Last fall she purchased her own horse, Tweedee Chaney, and takes riding lessons every Saturday. She enjoys playing both the piano and organ, but her favorite recreation has long been golf. She enjoys playing many courses and once traveled to California with her parents playing various courses on the way there and back. Washington C.H. golf enthusiasts best remember her as the ladies club champion for five consecutive years 1967-71. Besides bicycling and swimming, Miss Robinson has joined the growing ranks of tennis players where she and Mrs. Otis Hess teamed up to win the 1974 women's doubles championship.

During the school year, her class compiles notebooks in reading, English, and math from worksheets that go along with some new cassette tape recordings. In social studies, the group will do a special unit on California. Her group especially likes its personalized digitor pictured here which helps the class automatically learn and review arithmetic facts by selecting responses to the facts given electronically and then indicates their correctness.

During the coming week, the children will be doing a variety of things. Miss Robinson explains, "They will be doing reading comprehension papers, S.R.A., and word cards. Some of the children will be taking math flash card tests and using the computer programmed for addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division facts."

Miss Robinson says, "I like children and enjoy doing extra activities with them. I have taken some of them to the Ohio Theatre, several have ridden my horse, and most of them have played ping-pong with me."

Lincoln Wilson especially said he liked the electronic digitor while Marc Edmonson simply said there were too many nice things about school and it was impossible to tell all about them.

The host for next week will be Marc Edmonson and the hostess will be La Donna Jackson. Miss Robinson and her class extend a hearty welcome to all visitors at any time.

Armco announces more layoffs

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP)—Armco Steel Corp. Wednesday announced that 400 more steel workers will be laid off March 16 bringing total layoffs at the Middletown complex to 1,000.

"We had hoped to avoid further layoffs," said Works Manager Carl Fiora, "but we are not getting the new orders needed to maintain even our present level of operations. Our sales projections for the next few months indicate no improvement in business."

The layoffs affect workers hired on or after March 31, 1971. Officials said 5,600 steel workers remain employed.

Glenn backs proposal

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, voted with the majority as the Senate approved 73-21 the limiting of debate in a filibuster cutoff move. Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, was absent because of his hospitalization for an eye operation.

Opinion And Comment

Rocky's new stance

During his many years in public life Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller has shown a preference for orchestrated disclosure of his political plans. Casual, off-the-cuff announcements are not his style.

This lends particular interest to his informal way of revealing that he has all but given up on the presidency. The most momentous announcement of his political career emerged informally from a talk with reporters aboard his plane on the way back to Washington from a Detroit appearance.

Even now, Rockefeller has not said flatly that his ambitions to be president are at an end. His remarks were predicated on the assumption that President Ford "is bound to run and be a candidate" for re-election. Therefore, he said, "you've got to be talking about 1980. And that's crazy." This is a realistic appraisal, considering that Rockefeller would then be 72. But in the event that Mr. Ford should not choose to run in 1976 — well, that is clearly a different kettle of fish, and the vice president might yet be a candidate.

The practical consideration now, however, must be what Rockefeller's situation is in light of his estimate that he is "not a competitive factor with rising stars" — or as far as the President is concerned. As Rockefeller himself concludes, these circumstances are likely to give him more clout than any previous vice president has had. This already is indicated by his control of the Domestic Council; the vice president appears sure to have an increasing role in formulation of policy as time passes. Losing out on one last shot at the presidency may have hit his compensations, after all.

A WORD EDGEWISE By John P. Roche

The Cambodian trick

With ominous headlines about the imminent collapse of Cambodia dominating the news, there has also been a great deal of flagellation about the nefarious role played by the United States in dragging this friendly, peaceful little country into the war. It is not uncommon to rewrite yesterday's history to suit today's needs, but the Cambodian instance is just a bit too much. The fact is that we no more "enlarged" the war to include Cambodia than General Eisenhower "enlarged" the war when he invaded Normandy in June, 1944. For almost a third of a century the Indochinese Communists (as they once called themselves) have been fighting a war for Indochina. Not just for both Vietnams, but for Laos and Cambodia as well. Ho Chi Minh's clear objective, followed by his successors, was to establish a Communist successor state to French Indochina.

As early as the Geneva Conference of 1954 the Cambodian delegate was bitterly complaining about North Vietnamese aggression. Hanoi maintained the fiction that the trouble in Cambodia was caused by autonomous rebels, but when the time came to sign the military agreements (the only things signed at Geneva), he signed for the so-called "Red Khmers." As the war in Vietnam began to heat up in the early 1960s (particularly after the North Vietnamese ignored the Laos neutralization accord of 1962), Hanoi, with its characteristic ruthlessness, moved to consolidate its power along the Laotian and Cambodian borders of the Republic of Vietnam. Several Cambodian provinces (virtually unpopulated) were integrated into the Ho Chi Minh Trail, and sanctuaries were set up for the benefit of Communist troops in Vietnam.

The then ruler of Cambodia, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, began an intricate game designed to maintain the independence of the Khmer kingdom, an ethnic enclave of some five million surrounded by traditional enemies: Thais and Vietnamese. It would take a volume, preferably fiction, to convey the extent of Sihanouk's efforts. One consequence was his willingness to put the telescope to his blind eye when American bombers went after the Cambodian sanctuaries — as long as he had no official knowledge, he would not complain.

But while the Prince was working one side of the street, his wife Monique (a Vietnamese) was working the other. The simplest way to get stuff to the North Vietnamese troops in the South was by boat to Sihanoukville and thence overland to the sanctuaries — the so-called "Sihanouk Trail." For years, top American military figures wanted to cut this line by a limited invasion of (already Communist-inhabited) Cambodia, claiming that (if memory serves) Hanoi's forces were getting about 6-8 million tons of equipment a year via that route. The State Department, opposed to any incursion, downgraded this estimate to some 3-4 million tons. To get ahead of the story, when Sihanouk was toppled and a thorough investigation launched, it turned out that Monique, using the Cambodian army to run her transport, had probably set up the biggest arms-running operation in history, delivering some 10-12 million tons a year. Cambodia had become an arms syndicate that issued postage stamps.

In the spring of 1970 an event occurred which took all hands by surprise. In a sudden convulsion, triggered by the conviction that Sihanouk was selling out his people, the Cambodians threw out the Prince and established a Republic headed by General Lon Nol. Initially there was enormous popular enthusiasm for this coup, particularly among nationalist students, and Sihanouk wandered off to Peking. Unfortunately, in the terms of American war-weariness, the change was about five years late. Thus, in asking military aid for the Cambodians, Secretary of State William Rogers flatly told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that "Administration officials have said repeatedly that the furnishing of aid to the government of Cambodia does not constitute a commitment to see that the government survives."

Quickly passing over the years intervening, three things are now quite clear. First, the Cambodian government is going down the tubes under concerted and heavily supplied Communist assault. Second, we did not enlarge the war — Hanoi did — and our later invasion of the sanctuaries was a perfectly legitimate riposte done at the request of Lon Nol. Third, on the record we have no legal commitment to Phom Penh: They can sink or swim. The real question, then, is on another level: Do we want the Khmers to be enveloped by Communist totalitarianism? Is Congress capable of looking at the issue on this moral level?

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Avoid restlessness, regrets over past errors, apprehension. These could all interfere with your progress. Stop firmly, but also lightly and tactfully.

YOU BORN TODAY are an extremely scholarly individual, a student of nature and purely intellectual in all your approaches to life and its various situations. You are highly intuitive, also, but sometimes make the mistake of trying to "analyze" your intuitive "messages." This renders them worthless. You are suited to a position of trust since your integrity is outstanding. You also like travel and unusual tasks. You rebel at routine. Music and the entertainment world would make excellent outlets for your talents and you could also shine in the fields of horticulture and landscape gardening.

Governor's move on regents set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes' long-awaited move against the Ohio Board of Regents is expected to surface in his budget message to the legislature March 10.

Rhodes has made it clear that he feels the nine-member panel has exceeded its authority in planning and coordinating the activities of the 37 state-assisted universities and colleges.

Shortly after his inauguration, he was quoted as saying the board's future function should be "to go out of existence."

Chancellor James A. Norton has attempted to remain above the controversy. Repeatedly he has declined to respond directly to the governor's threats.

It hasn't been easy. Norton has plowed ahead with business as usual, but the spectre of a pending bill to rip up the regents has been always in the background.

Norton recently made an elaborate two-hour presentation to the House Finance Committee, using charts and slide projections to explain the board's $1.3 billion budget request.

A few days later a spokesman for the 12 state universities appeared before the committee's education section.

Hollis A. Moore, president of Bowling Green University, is chairman of the Inter-University Council, which Rhodes wants to revitalize as part of the plan to curtail activities of the regents.

Moore told the education section, "Some recent press reports have left the impression that the IUC is a thing of the past, that it expired when the regents system was initiated."

"But, like rumors of Mark Twain's early death, I want to assure you that such reports are grossly exaggerated. Today the IUC thrives and is perhaps stronger than it has been for several years."

Moore added an obvious reference to the controversy over the regents: "I sense an ardent desire by Ohioans to avoid a monolithic, centralized bureaucracy for higher education. A coordinating board, 'yes,' but a single board to govern all institutions, 'no,' and we hope the answer will remain 'no.'"

President Harold Enarson of Ohio State agreed with the governor that the board has become too powerful, moving into areas of control, centralization and management.

But, he said he thought the regents should be retained as a planning and coordinating body.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

The stranger's lunch made her sick

DEAR ABBY: An incident happened about two months ago, and I can't seem to get it out of my mind. In fact, when I think of it, it still repulses me, and I'd like to know if you think I'm wrong to feel this way.

My Mom and I were eating lunch during the rush hour at a fairly nice restaurant. A man and a young boy entered together. The man had no arms, just stumps. Hanging in full view of all. They sat near us, and ordered their lunch. The man's plate was placed in front of him, and he proceeded to knock it into eating position with his stumps. Then he put his face down into the plate and proceeded to eat just like a dog. I was so nauseated I couldn't finish my lunch.

I honestly felt sorry for the man, but I also felt that he should not have exposed the people to that kind of scene. Please tell me how you honestly feel about it. It bothers me how much his looks and eating habits repulsed me. Thank you very much.

NO NAME OR PLACE

DEAR NO: You ask: "Am I wrong to feel this way?" Consider this: The armless man had to overcome his self-consciousness and learn how to handle the stares and looks of revulsion from strangers in order to eat in public. (A major victory for him!)

It takes a mature and compassionate person to handle unesthetic situations with grace. I hope you learn to do so because you will need it to deal with life realistically. And if you don't it will be YOUR problem.

DEAR ABBY: There is this guy who is a year older than me, and a whole lot bigger. The other day he gave me a black eye. I would like to get back at him but I don't know how to do it.

Have you any ideas?

BLACKEYE

DEAR BLACK EYE: Stay out of his way, or you might end up with a matched pair.

DEAR ABBY: I met a man about a year and a half ago, and I really think he is the man for me. The only problem is that he is very set in his ways, and one of his faults is always being late. If he says he is going to call me at 6 PM, he doesn't call until 7 PM. And if he says he is coming over at 8 PM, he never gets here until 9 PM. He is always about an hour late.

I have talked to him about this, and he says he's always been that way. It really infuriates me. I want to marry him, but I'd like to break him of this habit first.

He treats me very well, and he is the nicest man I've ever met, but his constantly running an hour late all the time is something I can't stand. How can I change him?

NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: Don't try. In the future, when you want him to come over at 8 p.m., ask him to come at 7 p.m. Just set everything up for an hour earlier, and when he's an hour late, he'll be on time.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "LOVED AND LOST": It's not always better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all. It depends upon what you've lost.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, March 6, the 65th day of 1975. There are 300 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

In 1836, the Alamo in San Antonio, Tex., fell after a 13-day siege. Davy Crockett and some 180 other defenders were killed.

On this date—

In 1475, the Renaissance artist Michelangelo was born in Caprese, Italy.

In 1857, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that a slave, Dred Scott, could not sue for his freedom in a federal court.

In 1945, during World War II, the German city of Cologne fell to the U.S. 1st Army.

In 1957, the former British African colonies of the Gold Coast and Togoland became the independent state of Ghana.

In 1953, Georgi Malenkov became Soviet premier after the death of Josef Stalin.

In 1961, President John Kennedy issued an executive order to guarantee equal job opportunities within the government, without regard to race.

Ten years ago: The Pentagon announced that 3,500 U.S. Marines were being sent to South Vietnam — the first American ground combat troops committed to the fighting against Communist guerrillas.

Five years ago: Sharp fighting raged in the South Vietnam jungle near the Cambodian border as an American rifle company clashed with a North Vietnamese force guarding supplies.

One year ago: President Richard Nixon, in a televised news conference, denied he had ever approved hush money or clemency for the Watergate defendants.

Today's birthdays: Conductor Julius Rudel is 54. Hall of Fame baseball pitcher Robert "Lefty" Grove is 75.

Thought for today: A man who could make so vile a pun would not scruple to pick a pocket. — John Dennis, English critic and dramatist, 1657-1734.

In case against Greenfield policeman

Tempers flare after dismissal

Tempers flared following the dismissal in Municipal Court Wednesday of a charge of disorderly conduct which had been filed against a Greenfield police officer.

The charge of disorderly conduct by intoxication had been filed by Fayette County sheriff's Deputy Larry Camp Feb. 6 against Hugh (Dizzy) Oyer, a Greenfield police sergeant, who was in the Fayette Memorial Hospital emergency room at the time.

After the prosecution rested its case, defense attorney John Bryan moved for dismissal of the charge on grounds that the state had failed to prove the elements necessary to support the charge. Acting Judge Otis R. Hess Jr., granted the request.

Deputy Camp was obviously upset with the outcome of the case and stormed from the courtroom. The judge asked that Camp be returned to the courtroom and then "asked" him to be more orderly the next time he saw fit to leave.

Judge Hess then explained that although it seemed possible the defendant had been disorderly, the evidence presented had not sufficiently shown this. "While I may personally believe any defendant may be guilty, I cannot act except upon the evidence presented before the court," Hess said.

Outside the courtroom, Sheriff Don Thompson met with the attorneys and Judge Hess and stated that he was extremely displeased with the results of the trial. He said he was aware that there was political turmoil in Greenfield and the officer could lose his job if convicted, but these considerations should not influence court proceedings. The sheriff had not been in the courtroom during the trial and did not single out any of the participants but said there was something "very wrong" with the dismissal.

John H. Roszmann, who prosecuted the case, said he had felt the evidence presented was sufficient, but that only the court could make that determination. Roszmann had been asked to handle the state's case because city solicitor Gary Smith was a close friend of the defendant.

Camp testified he had first seen the defendant on the night in question at the Club 22, CCC Highway-W. He said Oyer was standing outside the club suffering from a large head wound which apparently required medical treatment. He said Oyer stated at that time that he had been struck with a stick by someone inside the bar.

The deputy testified that he spent some 10 or 15 minutes inside the Club 22. When asked by Roszmann as to what those inside had said happened, Bryan objected that such an account would be hearsay, and the objection was sustained. He was allowed to say the accounts did not coincide with the defendant's statements.

Camp said he then went to Fayette Memorial Hospital where Oyer was being treated. When he arrived, the defendant was strapped to a bed in the emergency room. The deputy said Oyer was loudly proclaiming he was going to get a gun and shoot the men who had assaulted him. He said he could see the defendant was intoxicated and noted he would not have been acting that way if he had not been drinking heavily. It was then that the officer placed him under arrest.

Under cross-examination, however, Camp admitted that he did not know whether or not any drugs had been administered to the defendant prior to the deputy's arrival. He also said the head wound was still bleeding, and Oyer was not attempting to struggle against the straps or trying to get out of the bed. He said no threats were being made against the officers or hospital personnel present at the scene.

In explaining his decision to dismiss the charge, Judge Hess said the prosecution had stated Oyer was charged only on his conduct at the hospital, not at the Club 22. Since his behavior at the hospital could have been attributed to (possible) drugs administered or the head wound, and there was no evidence of intoxication other than an odor of alcohol on his breath, intoxication had not been proved.

He also said "the threats" uttered by Oyer were apparently idle ramblings of a man who was not in possession of all his faculties at the time they were made. He noted the testimony indicated the defendant was not trying to get up, the persons against whom the threats were made were far removed from the area, and the defendant was about to be injected with drugs which would calm him.

Organizational meet held by district health group

The Fayette County District Health Advisory Council met Tuesday in the City Office Building for the annual organizational meeting and election of officers for 1975.

Newly elected officers are Robert Garland, president; Max Grim, vice president; and Woodrow Workman, secretary.

The council, which consists of the presidents of the board of trustees from each township, mayors of the incorporated villages and the Washington C.H. city manager, meets annually for the purpose of making recommendations to the county health department. The council is responsible for financing the health department and appointing a working body at the department.

The council expressed its regrets Tuesday over the retirement of Clifford Hughes from the county health board and appointed Mrs. Rollo Marchant to replace him. Mrs. Marchant will serve on the board until her term expires in 1980.

Reports were given by Dr. William E. Covert, county health commissioner, Mrs. Phyllis Richards, nursing supervisor at the county health department, and Charles Funk, county health sanitarian.

County health board members present for the meeting were Vic Luneborg, David Morrow and Robert Bishop.

Nearly 220 sheep and lamb producers and guests were on hand Wednesday night for the 35th annual Fayette County Shepherd's Club banquet in the Mahan Building.

Bob Miller, director of agricultural activities for WLW Radio and AVCO Broadcasting Corp., was the featured speaker. Miller gave a slide - talk presentation of his recent trip to several South American countries to review the work being done through the Peace Corps.

Miller's comments focused on the hunger situation in the developing countries that he visited. He pointed out several examples of the progress that has been made through programs such as the Peace Corps. Miller emphasized that if we are going to feed the hungry people of the world we will have to give them more than food. He said we can do more for them by sharing our knowledge of food production.

Officers and directors for the Fayette County Shepherd's Club were elected during the banquet. Charles Wehner, Rt. 1, Greenfield, was elected to succeed Dan Schlichter, Prairie Road, as president. James Hains, Bloomingburg, was elected vice president succeeding James Beatty, Rt. 1, Greenfield. John Melvin, Bloomingburg, was elected secretary succeeding Wehner and Malcom Bloomer, 1259 Hess Rd., was elected treasurer succeeding Hains.

Directors elected for two-year terms were Robert Highfield, Malcolm Bloomer, James Beatty, Marion Stockwell, James Hains, John Melvin, and Rob Frost.

G. B. Vance was recognized as having attended all 35 Shepherd's Club banquets.

Gambling law change pondered

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio House Judiciary Committee is considering whether to recommend that the state's gambling law be amended or thrown out, an assistant Summit County prosecutor said Wednesday.

But Steven Gomberg said the committee is committed to "positive forthright action to clean up" the statute, which has been blamed for permitting more than a dozen casinos to spring up in the Akron area.

Gomberg testified in Columbus earlier this week at the committee's last public hearing on anti-gambling legislation.

"We feel that...an amendment is probably the last necessary step if the legislature wishes to legalize any portion of the gambling operation in the state," Gomberg said.

A Summit County Common Pleas judge recently ruled unconstitutional the state law permitting gambling as charity fund-raising activity.

An 18-year-old youth was bound over to the Fayette County grand jury Wednesday in Washington C. H. Municipal Court by acting Judge Otis R. Hess Jr.

Demos shift financing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democrats on the Senate Finance Committee changed Gov. James A. Rhodes' $2.5 billion city and capital improvements bond issue Wednesday night to provide for financing by a state income tax hike rather than a sales tax increase.

The bond issue got sidetracked, along with three other amendments Rhodes wanted by midnight to qualify them for Ohio's June 3 ballot, but remained alive and could be placed on some future ballot.

Instead of the seven-tenths cent boost in the sales tax asked by the GOP governor, majority Democrats inserted increased income taxes for Ohioans who earn $20,000 or more a year. Those earning less wouldn't be affected.

Ohioans making between $20,000 and $40,000 would have their taxes increased from 3½ per cent to 5 per cent, while those above $40,000 would have to pay an increase of 5½ per cent, or a total of 9 per cent.

Although committee Democrats approved the switch, Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, said "we don't have the votes to pass it on the floor, at least not now."

Mrs. Greene administers massage

SO FAST, MY FEET ARE JUST A BLUR! — Mrs. Alberta Stewart, one of the members of the Washington C. H. Health Spa, exercises on the stationary bicycle. The spa, located in the basement of the Washington Hotel, corner of Market and Main streets, offers many different exercise machines for use by their members, along with steam cabinets and a rub-down-massage facility.

Mrs. Smith demonstrates belt vibrator

Yes, there is a health spa here

By MARK THELLMANN
Just because you don't know anyone who belongs to the "health spa" located somewhere within the Washington Hotel on the corner of Market and Main streets, doesn't mean it's a secret society or a front for an underworld organization.

There is actually a health spa in the hotel, complete with exercise rooms filled with exercise equipment, showers, steam cabinets and even a vibrator apparatus for a titillating massage, should you desire one (and rumor has it, there is no other way to end a workout!).

Two women in their early sixties, Wanda Wills of Bloomingburg, and Florence Smith, Bogus Road, operate and own the establishment which is managed by Mrs. Wills' daughter, Gerry Greene of Bloomingburg. The three got their start in the body-building business in the spring of 1968.

"My husband, Walter," Mrs. Wills began, "always enjoyed steam baths. He would go to the spas in Columbus and had always hoped one would open up locally, so he wouldn't have to travel so far."

Mrs. Wills admitted she and her husband had no idea they would be the ones to found the local spa, until they talked with a friend of theirs, who was a barber in Bluffton, Ind.

"This man gave steam baths in his garage on the side and had many patrons because of this alone," she stated and continued, "so Florence and I decided to give it a try, along with our beauty parlor, Connie's Coiffeurs on S. Main Street."

The original spa operated by the two women was located on Market Street, where Mark and Mustine Realty is now. It moved to its present location in the basement of the Washington Hotel in December, 1971, because it was hoped the spa could have access to the swimming pool beneath the hotel.

"Another surprise! Not only is there a health spa at the hotel, but a swimming pool also!" Mrs. Greene exclaimed and went on to explain, "many years ago the pool was drained for some reason or another and never refilled. It appears to be in good condition, but will require some money to fix up in order to be used once again. We believed this was going to be done when we made our move, but after the hotel changed hands, plans were altered. The present owners, Weade and Miller Realty may decide to renovate the facility someday, who knows?" Mrs. Greene said optimistically.

Membership at the spa numbers 60 women and four men and according to Mrs. Greene is starting to pick up.

"Now that spring is almost here, I guess people are becoming aware it's time to work on the ol' figure to get ready for the summer bathing suit competition," she mused.

When questioned why so few men participate, Mrs. Greene replied, "The male of our species is just too vain! Men won't admit they are out of shape and should do something to correct the situation, but another valid reason is 'time'. Our city and its people are so club-oriented, especially the men! They've got some organization to meet with every night after work, making it almost impossible to squeeze in a weekly workout, let alone a daily one." The three ladies would like to see more male participation in the club, because they feel they have something to offer which would be very beneficial to the businessman who doesn't have the opportunity to get much exercise. "Exercise is a fantastic way to work off the day's tensions created by stressful situations, along with excess pounds," Mrs. Greene stated and then warned, "stress is becoming a big killer today. You can't help but read about it, because of all the studies being conducted. Everyone experiences stress; it's a very natural thing, but if it isn't alleviated through constructive channels, it will build to the point where an individual may suffer a heart attack or a nervous breakdown."

The Washington Health Spa is not geared solely towards losing weight, although that can be easily accomplished with the exercise program. Rather, it is primarily concerned with people looking and feeling their very best.

"If a person desires weight loss, they should go on a diet and a diet should only be perscribed by their doctor. We can't guarantee you'll lose weight unless you do one suggested exercise at home," Mrs. Greene advised and then explained, "put both hands on the table in front of you after eating a balanced meal of filling proportion and push yourself away!"

Strangely enough, more people from outside Washington C.H.: Leesburg, Mount Sterling, Greenfield, Wilmington, Sabina, Hillsboro and even Chillicothe, patronize the health spa. The women can't explain this phenomena, but agree that the local people just don't realize the place exists.

"Maybe we need a bigger sign," Mrs. Greene sighed, "we've tried every form of advertising there is and still we get calls from people asking if we're the health department."

The spa is open from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m., Monday through Thursday. On Fridays, it closes at 6 p.m. A "complete workout" as outlined by Mrs. Greene, usually takes a couple hours.

"We begin with 35-40 minutes of calisthenics, usually done to a record, which keeps you moving right along," Mrs. Greene explained. Then the members can work specifically on parts of their bodies they want to build up or reduce with the aid of the apparatus: the belt vibrator, the jogging machine, the rowing machine, the stationary bicycle, etc. After that, it's time for relaxing in the steam cabinets, which thoroughly cleanse one's pores, followed by a shower and a rub down with body lotions and the massage-vibrator."

Mrs. Wills cited one instance in which a past patron, crippled with arthritis, came to the spa for only the steam baths.

"This woman, who was once a piano teacher, had tried everything for her arthritis," Mrs. Wills stated. "When we first met her, she walked with a cane, had to be helped up and down stairs and had such crippled fingers, she had to stop teaching piano. After two months of the baths, she threw her cane away, was able to walk unattended and went back to teaching piano."

Individual pricing on the programs offered by the spa run: $2.50 for use of the exercise equipment, $3 for use of the steam cabinets and $3.50 for the massage and rub-down. Long range programs run $75 for three months which include exercise everyday if desired and three steams and two rub-downs per week. A shorter plan charges $30 per month for the same benefits and other plans are available to fit the individual's needs.

For those anticipating the summer bathing-suit competition with anxiety, because of added winter poundage or general out-of-shapeness; yes, there is a health spa in Washington C.H.

Dress ordinance unconstitutional

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Supreme Court has ruled that a city ordinance forbidding persons to dress in the clothes of the opposite sex is unconstitutional.

In a unanimous ruling Wednesday, the court held the Columbus city ordinance is too vague in light of today's fashions.

"Clothing is sold for both sexes which is so similar in appearance that a person of ordinary intelligence might not be able to identify it as male or female dress," Chief Justice C. William O'Neill said in his opinion.

"In addition, it is not uncommon today for individuals to purposely, but innocently, wear apparel which is intended for wear by those of the opposite sex.

"Once it is recognized that present-day dress may not be capable of being characterized as being intended for male or female wear by a 'person of ordinary intelligence,' the constitutional defect in the ordinance becomes apparent," the chief justice said.

The ruling reversed the criminal conviction of John H. Rogers of Columbus, who was arrested April 21, 1973, under the ordinance.

In other decisions Wednesday, the court:

—Ordered Cuyahoga County Auditor George V. Voinovitch to issue $30 million in bonds to finish construction of the Cuyahoga County Justice Center.

County commissioners had approved the bonds, but Voinovitch refused to issue them, contending they were not authorized by a vote of the people.

The court held the bonds did not have to undergo a popular election as long as they were to be paid from proceeds under the 10-mill limit imposed by the constitution.

—Refused to give Irene P. Horner of Cleveland a seat on the state Reclamation Board of Review. She was appointed in 1973, but the Senate did not confirm her that year. The next year, the Senate rejected her appointment.

She contended the Senate gave silent consent to her appointment when it did not act in 1973. The court ruled, however, that the Senate could properly carry the matter over to the next year.

—Rejected appeals by seven school districts in which property tax levies were reduced. The tax levies were dropped after the state Board of Tax Appeals ordered property valuations increased. The court said under present state law, the tax levies had to be reduced in those circumstances.

Protests slated against inflation

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Demonstrations against the affects of inflation on the poor are planned in every major Ohio city, particularly Columbus, by PUSH, People United to Save Humanity.

The announcement was made in Cincinnati Wednesday at a news conference by Rev. William Ricks, president of the Cincinnati branch of PUSH; Rev. Fred Shuttlesworth, PUSH chairman, and Rev. Otis Moss Jr. regional vice president of the national group headed by the Rev. Jesse Jackson, of Chicago.

A mass meeting was scheduled in Cincinnati March 20. Meetings and demonstrations in other Ohio cities will be announced later, the three said.

"Letters are going out to PUSH groups in the other cities, to ministers and other interested groups," said Rev. Shuttlesworth, a veteran civil rights worker here and in the South.

"This will all culminate in a massive demonstration at Columbus and maybe include a camp-in at the Capitol," he added.

Nationally, he said, PUSH plans to attack the big business influence on government. He said PUSH has six initial in Ohio:

—A "substantial" rollback in gas and electric rates for the poor and those on fixed incomes.

—A similar reduction of telephone rates.

—An immediate massive federal-state public works program to give people jobs and work."

—Adequate food stamps, with no increase in prices and subsistence for all poor in this country."

—A federal government emergency relief program for low-cost, subsidized, non-profit housing.

—Support for a massive airlift of food and needed items for the starving people of Africa similar to the Berlin Airlift.

Southwest all-stars named

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Dan Doellman has beaten some outstanding opposition for Ohio Southwestern District Class AAA high school basketball Player of the Year laurels. A district board of sports writers selected the 6-foot-7 Cincinnati Bacon senior forward and he heads The Associated Press' All-Southwestern squad. The board tapped Paul Walker of state poll champion Middletown for the district Class AAA Coach of the Year. The Class AA district selections were 6-5 Frankie Sanders of Dayton Stivers as the No. 1 player and Bill Hill of 15-3 Hamilton Badin as the top coach. In Class A, the honors went to 6-2 Mike Childs of Yellow Springs and Dale Nordyke, a former car salesman who led Cedarville to a 13-5 record. Doellman led the Cincinnati area in scoring (25.5-point average) and free throw shooting (.867 percentage) and averaged more than 10 rebounds a contest. He scored a school record 47 points in his last regular season game. Other first team Class AAA district selections included Middletown's 6-4 twins of terror, Victor Merchant and Butch Carter; 6-5 Jim Paxson of Kettering Alter and Todd Jones,

Springfield North's 6-5 versatile performer. Sanders, an exceptional shooter up to 30 feet, easily took the Greater Dayton area scoring title. Reds' Gary Nolan impresses Anderson

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Gary Nolan, who is attempting a comeback from arm troubles which have plagued him since 1972, continues to impress Cincinnati Reds Manager Sparky Anderson. "He's thrown real hard," said Anderson of the California righthander. "He's given us no reason to think he won't make it." Nolan, 28, missed all of last season following shoulder surgery and appeared only sparsely in 1973. Anderson, looking to beef up the Reds pitching staff, however, said he does not plan to use Nolan in spring games until the middle of the month. Meanwhile, Santo Alcala, Rawly Eastwick and Pat Zachry, all minor leaguers last year, were slated to hurl in the opening exhibition game Saturday against the Pittsburgh Pirates at Bradenton, Fla. No regulars will be in the starting lineup. John Vukovich will start at third base where Anderson said he plans to appear several players this year. Ray Knight will be on third Sunday for the first game here.

GARY NOLAN

Pat Darcy, Jack Billingham and Pedro Bordon will pitch Sunday, Anderson said.

Kentucky State earns MAIA playoffs slot

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kentucky State downed Pikeville 72-62 Wednesday night, earning for the sixth straight year the right to compete in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics national basketball tournament. The Thorobreds, ranked No. 1 in The Associated Press college division poll, took an early lead and never again trailed.

Horse racing gambling eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Horse racing, in the fashion of the professional sports of football, basketball and baseball and collegiate athletics, doesn't want federal intervention in its activity. The other sports told the National Gambling Commission two weeks ago they could live with illegal betting as it exists today but legalization of sports wagering would be disastrous. Likewise, horse racing's comments. For two days, representatives of the horse-racing industry told the commission that they were aware of illegal gambling on their sports but that legalization of interstate off-track betting would prove to be disastrous to their sport.

"The general feeling among the witnesses was that there was no necessity for federal involvement," James Ritchie, commission executive director, said Wednesday at the close of the hearings.

"But the arguments they make against it, clearly indicates that if the industry, through the various states, does not take steps to eliminate what appears to be disturbing economical problems, federal involvement may be necessary."

The Commission on the Review of the National Policy Toward Gambling has been holding hearings on betting in the United States and must make a report to the President and Congress by October 1976.

The 15-member panel, which was down to two commissioners by the end of the day Wednesday after starting with eight, held hearings on lotteries last fall and on sports gambling two weeks ago.

The commission will travel to Boston April 9-10-11 for hearings on organized crime, return to Washington May 6-7 for testimony on off-track betting and then go to Philadelphia May 21-22-23 for more hearings on organized crime and its relationship to gambling.

It also plans trips to Detroit, Chicago, Arizona, California, Florida and Nevada.

Ritchie also said the commission plans to hold further hearings on horse racing. Attempts will be made to bring in persons who bet to learn what they think of the sport's integrity and the effect of off-track wagering and tax surcharges, he said.

Cleveland Browns sign 2 draftees

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Two more draftees have returned their signed contracts to the Cleveland Browns, including one who signed a multiyear pact, the National Football League club announced Wednesday.

The Browns also announced they have given veteran wide receiver Fair Hooker his release.

The newcomers were wide receiver Oscar Roan of Southern Methodist, who signed the multiyear agreement, and defensive back Floyd Hogan of Arkansas. The Browns said Roan was expected to make a serious bid for a starting assignment.

Stall backfires on Greenfield foe

The Greenfield McClain Tigers took another step forward in post season tournament play with a 35-22 victory at Rio Grande Wednesday night over the Jackson Ironmen, winners of the Coal Grove Sectional. The low score was caused by an unimpressive Jackson stall. The score was just 12-10 in favor of Greenfield at the half with the Tigers taking their first lead with 1:20 left in the second period. After Jackson fell behind it was still reluctant to come out of the stall. Thanks to Jackson's turnovers and poor shooting percentage, Greenfield built a seven point lead going into the final period. Then the Ironmen's coach, Al

Berger, loosened the reigns, but it was too late. Greenfield hit for 14 points in the final quarter which was two points more than Jackson scored in the last three quarters. The Ironmen were pre-game favorites bringing a 14-5 record into the district's first round, but Coach Berger obviously didn't agree by inserting the stall. Berger used all ten of his players on a rotating basis and although Jackson's season history has been slowdown basketball, the Ironmen have never used such a radical stall. Steve Harvey led the Tigers with 14 points and the Tigers hit 13 of 16 from the foul line to end Jackson's season. Greenfield will play the winner of tonight's Wheelersburg and Nelsonville-York game in the district finals.

Pigeon campaign ends in stewpot

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A year-long campaign to rid the city of thousands of pigeons which dirtied the streets is developing a new breed of pigeon fancier in Lexington, of the gourmet variety.

One Lexington barber makes pigeon pot pie from birds he gets free from the city. Another resident boils pigeons with celery and onions for a savory stew. Another says pigeon baked in barbecue sauce is a No. 1 for the taste buds.

The city Health Department decided in January 1974 that it had to do something about the health hazard created by the huge flocks of pigeons that roamed the downtown area, roosting on buildings and spotting the sidewalks with their droppings.

The solution: Trap the birds and give them to local residents for food.

"It has been a great success," says James Byrd, commissioner of the city's Sanitation Department, which took over the operation last August. "We caught them alive and we give them away alive. There have been no complaints."

To date, 3,035 pigeons have been trapped and given away, according to Walton Robinson, a member of a special sanitation team assigned to watch the traps and collect the pigeons.

Robinson said he and coworker George Washington trap 30 to 60 birds a day in the summer; the number drops to 35 or less in the winter.

"One man came up here from Winchester (15 miles east of Lexington) and got 150 pigeons," Byrd said.

He said the birds are tender because they don't fly much and they eat mostly grain.

Some residents have asked the city to set traps on their roofs.

Robinson said one woman called to have a trap set at her home after her child fell ill, apparently from a disease carried by pigeons roosting on the house.

After the traps were set and the pigeons removed, the child's infection cleared up, he said.

Byrd said the pigeons carry insect pests as well as the spores of fungal diseases such as histoplasmosis. But he said any germs or pests are in the feathers of the birds and do not affect the quality of the meat.

Mao's portrait stirs big flap

WASHINGTON (AP) — Let a hundred flowers blossom, but for detente's sake, don't let the Chinese delegation see Andy Warhol's painting of Mao Tse-tung.

Concern that a group of visiting Chinese art experts would see the Warhol pop-art painting of their leader's face has caused a big flap at the Corcoran Gallery of Art, which is displaying the portrait.

A memorandum went out, telling the Corcoran staff that the visiting Chinese would be let in through a back door and escorted in such a way that they would miss the huge painting in the atrium entrance.

"Important," said the memo in the best revisionist style. "They will never enter the atrium ... and no mention can be made of the Warhol work. It does not exist."

Gas cutbacks hurt treatment

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Continued cutbacks in natural gas allocations could threaten the quality of Mansfield's sewage treatment, a city engineer said Wednesday.

George Cunitz told Mansfield City Council that other reductions in natural gas would mean only primary treatment could be given to sewage.

Youth Activities

HAPPY ATOMIC FARMERS
The third meeting of the Young Atomic Farmers was held recently. President Michelle Cockerill called the meeting to order and pledges were led by Brenda Ryan.

Brenda Ryan gave a safety report on "Hog Feeders." The club discussed a club project.

The meeting was adjourned and the next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. March 11.

Mark Newman, reporter

HAPPY HOMEMAKERS 4-H
The organizational meeting of the Happy Homemakers 4-H Club was held Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. in the Buena Vista Township Hall in Buena Vista. Projects were discussed and ideas for places to go for the annual tour were discussed. Election of officers and the amount of dues to be paid will be voted on at the next meeting which will be Monday in the Buena Vista Township Hall. The advisers Mrs. Harper, Mrs. Smith and Miss Hardman will serve refreshments.

Jo-Retta Brown, reporter

HAPPY BLUE BELLES
The regular meeting of the Happy Blue Belles was held in Belle-Aire School with all present. Jackie Sue Smith served refreshments. Melissa Climer gave roll call and dues were collected by Loretta Self. As each girl paid her dues, she told the group what she wanted to be when she grew up. The girls were told of the Annual Potluck in March, and all worked on invitations to take home to their families. Mrs. Boswell and Mrs. Wyatt assisted in making name tags for their parents to wear at the Potluck. Guests at the meeting were Mrs. Carmen Frogale and her daughter, Cammy, Amy Boswell and Wesley Wyatt also attended.

Before returning home, the girls formed a circle and played a game and sang "The Bluebird Goodbye Song." The next meeting will be March 10 with Amy Wyatt in charge of refreshments.

No one could be found to say why, but the Chinese canceled their visit the day after the memorandum was issued.

It was not clear why the gallery feared that the Chinese might take offense. Poster-size photographs of Mao are popular in the People's Republic. The Warhol rendition is a photograph painted over and is an accurate portrait except that Mao's face is painted graygreen.

The author of the Corcoran memorandum, against that its existence became known and fearful she would be identified publicly, told a reporter the paragraph "was really done facetiously."

She said she didn't know why the visit was canceled.

The Chinese experts have been in Washington since late last year, accompanying a highly acclaimed exhibition of Chinese art and archaeological artifacts from the People's Republic of China. The exhibition has been at the National Gallery of Art.

The Corcoran Gallery invited the Chinese to come over to see the Corcoran's Historic American collection and the memo notified the staff there would be four group members on the visit Feb. 27.

"They will be taken on a tour of the American collection via the back staircase ..." the memo said.

PIC-A-FAY 4-H CLUB

The third meeting of the Pic-a-Fay 4-H Club was opened by President Cindy Baird. Pledges were led by Linda Miller. A very interesting talk on "Plaids" was given by Kay Alexander. She told us to be sure that the pattern you are using calls for plaid material. She also said that if you pin the edges together and match notches according to the plaid that your plaids will match in the final outfit.

Two committees were set up, the program committee which will consist of the officers and the constitution committee which is made up of Karen Miller, Cathy Coldiron, and Angela Johnson. Brenda Reinhart spoke about the cracked-wheat bread she had made. Each member was given a sample.

Junior leaders in the club are Cindy Baird, Twila Dennis, Denise Drake, Gale Horney, Jane Kearney, and Jomi Warner. Three of these junior leaders, Cindy Baird, Denise Drake, and Jomi Warner, served on the county awareness team.

Refreshments were served by Angela Johnson and Kathy Kirk at the close of the meeting. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Rodney Miller with refreshments served by Cindy Baird and Terry Helsel. Advisers for the club are Mrs. Rodney Miller and Mrs. Harold Thompson.

Gale Horney, reporter

PERRY PEPPY FARMERS

The meeting of the Perry Peppy Farmers was held in the adviser's home. This was the first meeting with the new officers presiding.

The officers are: President, Debbie Wehner; vice president, Sue Mitchell; secretary, Kim Mickle; treasurer, Cathy Mitchell; news reporter, Terri Hidy; health reporter, Cole Hidy; safety, Mike Wehner; recreation leaders, Mike Mickle and Bruce Carson.

Having a square dance as a money-making project was discussed. It was decided to have the dance March 22 at the Good Hope gymnasium. This will be open to the public and $1.00 per person.

Project books and schedules were distributed.

AMBITIOUS FARMERS SENIOR 4-H CLUB

The first meeting of the Ambitious Farmers Senior 4-H Club was held at the Jeffersonville School Tuesday night. The meeting was called to order by Jon Ervin, adviser. We first elected officers. They are: President, Rod Garringer; Bruce Ervin, vice president; Connie Hughes, secretary; Beth Jenks, treasurer; Sandy Hughes, news reporter; Craig DeMont, recreation; Rusty Coe, health leader; and Kennon Wissinger, safety leader.

Determining Sex Before Conception

A friend of mine told me that it is now possible to establish the sex of a child before it is conceived. How is this possible?

Mrs. T.L., Calif.

Dear Mrs. L.:

Your friend obviously read the same nonscientific report that was brought to my attention.

A doctor in Canada stated that 80 per cent of his patients who followed a rigid diet laid down by him could control the sex of their future heir.

Artichokes, spinach and mushrooms are recommended if a boy is desired. If she wishes a girl, the mother-to-be should avoid "all kinds of bread, preserves, luncheon meat, bananas, artichokes, coffee and tea."

Can you imagine how mixed up a woman would be if she wanted twins, one boy and one girl?

Until such time as there is any validity to this farfetched idea, no one should have any such "pre-conceived" notion about sex determination.

Are there any other venereal diseases besides syphilis and gonorrhea?

Mr. H.V.R., Ohio

Dear Mr. R.:

A venereal disease is distinguished by the fact that it can be passed from one person to another by sexual contact. "Genital herpes" is a viral disease which is now being considered a venereal disease.

This disease has captured the attention of doctors and scientists who recognize the potential dangers of complications that can arise in both men and women.

Blister that resemble the cold sores more commonly seen around the lips, can also occur in the genital areas.

Although there is no specific cure for genital herpes, new drugs and special dyes have been used with moderately good results.

This is as good a time to emphasize that syphilis and gonorrhea have reached epidemic proportions. The rise in the number of cases of venereal disease is serious, especially to those who know the devastating aftermath of unrecognized and untreated venereal infections.

Additional insulation, weatherstripping and caulking - generally associated with keeping a house warm - are the same things that will keep an air conditioner operating more efficiently during hot weather.

Air conditioners nevertheless can waste energy even when such steps are taken. Cutting down this waste will slice your electric bills, save the country's crucial energy and prevent some of the brownouts and blackouts experienced in parts of the country during extremely hot weather.

Although central air conditioning systems are gaining in popularity every year, most houses that have air conditioning use room units, generally of the window or through-the-wall types.

Energy is saved when your air conditioner gives sufficient cooling while using a minimum amount of power. Here are 10 steps that can be taken to attain this objective:

1 - The temperature control should be set to keep the room comfortable and not to keep it overcool, a habit in many homes. In one test, most types of units did well when the air conditioner's thermostat was set at about 80 degrees when the outside temperature was 95. Too often, someone in a family turns on the air conditioning unit simply because it's warm outside even though it may be comfortable inside.

2 - Avoid frequent setting changes and on-off operation. Don't leave the unit on all day when no one is at home. If necessary, use a timer to turn it on again about an hour before one of the family returns.

3 - Where applicable, use the fresh air and exhaust vents on the "open" setting when you want to remove heavy smoke and stale air. Keep the vents closed at all other times unless you want to waste cool air to the outside.

4 - By operating the fan only, you can use the air conditioner as a clean air circulator, enabling the unit to filter and recirculate the air.

5 - For maximum efficiency, the condenser coil at the rear of the unit outside the house should be cleaned before the start of every season. You can do this yourself with some models. With others, it may be necessary to call a serviceman.

6 - Outside air leaks should be prevented at all times. Make sure the window mounting kit is installed and sealed properly. Keep the unit protected during a cold-weather season. Some conditioners have built-in weather seals which automatically prevent leakage. With others, you need a protective covering.

7 - While most air conditioners have permanently lubricated motor bearings and do not require maintenance, you can avoid trouble by checking your operator's manual and following the directions.

8 - Replace and clean the air filter regularly. It should be inspected frequently and cleaned when necessary.

9 - Be sure the unit is not obstructed by drapes or any other hangings or large pieces of furniture.

10 - Prune away overhanging bushes or branches on the outside near the window in which the air conditioner is installed.

Police probe freak downtown accident

Washington C.H. police reported a freak accident in downtown Washington C. H. and the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported two hit-skip accidents.

Luckily no one was browsing through the pocketbook editions or trying on sunglasses in Risch's drug store, corner of Fayette and Court streets, at 2:25 p.m. Wednesday, because at that time a tire blew out on a truck driven by John E. Oyer, 25, Greenfield, propelling the rim of the right rear set of dual wheels through the store's front window where the sunglasses and pocketbook edition displays are located.

Washington C. H. police reported that Oyer stopped his truck after hearing the crash, but did not realize what had happened until he investigated.

The front windshield of a car driven by Dale E. Patton, 27, of 5148 Stafford Rd., was broken by a rock thrown up from a passing semi-truck at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, while the vehicles were traveling in opposite directions on U.S. 62 in Green Township.

Sheriff's deputies reported Patton unhurt in the accident.

A fence belonging to Robert E. McFadden, Rt. 3, was damaged by a hit-skip vehicle which ran off Jasper-Coil Road, 200 feet south of Burnett-Perrill Road, struck the fence and then left the scene.

Sheriff's deputies received the report Tuesday.

NFO members hear reports

The Fayette County National Farmers Organization met Wednesday evening for a steak dinner at the Home Restaurant in Jeffersonville and heard up-to-date reports on milk, grain and beef products.

Ritch Langenkamp, area director of livestock specialists, reported on red meat and the progress of the ground beef movement; Urban Schnipke, area marketing grain representative, spoke on grain and urged all members to sign up their grain; and Paul Falkerson, executive assistant from the home office, issued a report on milk and grain marketing.

William Burr, president of the local organization, announced the Zone 2 meeting of the Columbus marketing area will be held March 20 at 8 p.m. in the Five Points Methodist Church, near Mount Sterling. The meeting is for the purpose of electing a member and alternate to serve on the area bargaining committee for 1975.

Zone 2 includes Fayette, Fairfield, Franklin, Licking, Madison and Pickaway counties.

The next county meeting will be held April 2 at the Home Restaurant at 7:30 p.m.

Good planting weather seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government scientists say there is a 60 per cent chance that the weather will be warmer than usual this spring in most of the country as farmers turn to planting corn, soybeans and other crops for the 1975 harvests.

Cold, wet weather and severe storms in many areas hampered plantings last spring, causing 1974 crop production to drop severely from early expectations. The delay in planting last spring was followed by summer drought in parts of the Midwest, and early frosts last fall cut yields further by killing some corn and soybeans before they had time to mature.

"The spring outlook for the period

March through May calls for above-normal temperatures across the eastern two-thirds of the nation except for the northern tier of states," the weather watchers said.

The 1975 outlook was included in a weekly report issued Wednesday by the Agriculture Department in cooperation with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

"Above-normal temperatures will push the early development of wheat and encourage early field work in the Corn Belt, provided moisture does not become a problem," the report said.

The report included a chart illustrating the outlook for warmer weather this spring. It showed there is a 60 per cent chance, based on current indications and historical records, that temperatures will be above normal in March, April and May when spring-planted crops are seeded and when winter wheat planted last fall will do much of its growing.

Although the USDA has not made official estimates of 1975 crop production, officials have said that an all-out planting surge by farmers could produce record harvests of wheat and corn if they have favorable weather. Those commodities are most important as food builders and for export.

The USDA-NOAA report did not venture beyond March-June in its forecast.
